Chain-Postcards Forbidden

Are you one of the puzzled Hope women to whom a friend said she mailed a postcard that you never got? And what made it all the more puzzling, you heard of other women who never received their postcards either. If it was the kind of a card that has been reaching Hope postoffice in batches recently your failure to get it was no accident—the government has simply grabbed it . . . and for good reason.

Power to Take Over Property in U. S. Asked

Would Give President Authority to Take Land
for Defense Use

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A request for legislative authority for the President during the national emergency to requisition property of any kind necessary to national defense was submitted Monday to congress.

Officials said the authority was "all inclusive" and similar to that of Woodrow Wilson during the World War.

The war department said the bill had been approved by the army and navy and the Office of Production Management.

The proposed bill states that authority asked "shall be construed and considered as additional grant of authority."

The 1920 national defense act already gives the President power to enforce compliance with defense orders.

Road Funds Asked
WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Roosevelt recommended Monday an additional appropriation of 125 million dollars for special defense on highway construction.

In a message to congress the President proposed that $100,000,000 go for assisting in the development of roads; $25,000,000 to go to the strengthening of bridges.

The President's recommendation was based on a survey by the Federal Works Administration of high facilities from the viewpoint of national defense.

Baptist Bible School Opens

144 Attend
First Session Here
on Monday

The Vacation Bible School opened at First Baptist church Monday morning at 8:30 with 144 attending. This was 12 more than the number present on the same day of the school last year, so a record breaking attendance is expected throughout the whole school.

In the Joint-Worship period this morning, Professor E. O. Sellers of the Baptist Bible Institute faculty in New Orleans, taught some new songs and talked to the Juniors and Intermediates. Other activities of the day were stories, notebook work, handwriting, song, and Scripture studying and memorizing.

The school will last for two weeks and there is still time for any boys and girls between the ages of 4 and 17 to enroll.

CRANIUM CRACKERS

Good Neighbors

South Americans don't care much for the way U. S. movies have been portraying the Latin countries, but otherwise relations between our western continents have been quite good neighborly. Take a glance southward with these questions about the Latin locale.

1. What movie star was sent to South America as a good will ambassador?
2. What South American president's son came to Warm Springs, Ga., for polio treatments at invitation of President Roosevelt?
3. Is the Panama Canal longer than the Suez Canal?
4. What vital war material is produced in quantity in Venezuela, as well as in some other South American nations?
5. Give the capitals of these South American countries: Paraguay, Uruguay, Ecuador, Venezuela, Chile.

Arms Priority Bill of Wartime Scope Signed

President
Empowered to Award Contracts to Foreign Countries.

HYDE PARK —(AP)— President Roosevelt obtained Monday more power to speed the production of arms to Britain and the United States by signing a bill permitting mandatory priority of a war time scope.

President Roosevelt signed the bill under which order or contract to any foreign government brought to terms under the lend lease act.

Heretofore only contracts placed by the army and navy could be given priority by the Office of Production Management, the agent to which Mr. Roosevelt has delegated his authority.

Again to bolster the armament program President Roosevelt signed a bill to keep the flow of iron ore into steel plants and giving Canadian ships permission to carry iron ore between U. S. ports on the Great Lakes during the 1941 season. The bill extends for a year.

Germans Bomb Manchester

Casualties Believed
Heavy; Many Fires Caused

MANCHESTER—(AP)—German planes dropped hundreds of incendiary bombs and high explosives on the English city of Manchester Monday.

Rescue crews were handicapped by black smoke as they dug in debris for victims. Although causing numerous fires, sources said they had all been brought under control.

A number of nurses were feared to have been buried in the wreckage when a bomb struck a nurses home. Two hospitals were damaged in other areas and three churches and several air raid shelters were hit in addition to numerous homes. Three hospitals and a motion picture theater were hit.

In one district a man, his wife and 10-year-old daughter were hit directly by a bomb. The man's body was found behind a wall; his wife's body was found across a sign on the second story of a building and no trace was found of the child.

Casualties were feared to be heavy.

The moving picture projection machine was invented by Thomas Alva Edison.

German Ships Land Troops in Syria

Equipped Soldiers
Landed May 29;
British Prepare
Cyprus

ANKARA, Turkey —(AP)— German motor troops were landed by coastal freighter at the Syrian port of Latakia, May 29, it was learned here Monday from high authorized sources.

The First Nazi detachment to reach north Syria was reported to be equipped with lorries, armored cars and field guns.

German transports were believed to have hugged the coast from the Dodecanese Islands, thus escaping detection by British naval ships from Cyprus.

British Prepare Cyprus
NICOSIA, Island of Cyprus—(AP)— Removal of British women and children and withdrawal of native families to the hills have been started in Cyprus by the British in anticipation of a quick Axis assault.

Tension mounted as preparation brought home to the people that they might be next in line for an Axis invasion.

Defense Plant Looms for Hope

Report of Army
Proving Ground
Here Unconfirmed

A report that a 10-million-dollar proving ground for the War Department may be established near Hope was printed in Sunday's Little Rock newspapers, but the story remained unconfirmed Monday.

The Star was reliably informed Monday that any publication in the matter was premature, that only survey work has been done regarding tentative war-material plants in the Southwest, and that actual locations haven't yet been made.

Van Hayes to Speak at Kiwanis Meet

Van Hayes, Hope attorney, will discuss "Problems of Arkansas and the South" at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Hotel Barlow Tuesday. Mr. Hayes has recently moved to Hope from Washington where he was superintendent of schools for the past 3 years.

All club members are urged to attend.

Hope Girl Wins Church Award

Nancy Hill Wins
Episcopal Camp
Scholarship

The scholarship awards to Camp Mitchell to be held at Mather Lodge, Petit Jean State Park, June 10-25, have been announced by Bishop Mitchell.

The contest was divided into two age-groups. The older from 14 up, consisted of answering 50 questions on the Prayer Book. Two papers were of such excellence that the judges had to call it a tie. The tied winners for first place were: Miss Nancy Hill of St. Mark's Parish, Hope, and Miss Geraldine Maxwell, of St. John's Parish, Helena. The other winners in this group were: Miss Jean Spies of Fayetteville, Miss Sammie Lou Ridling of Mena and Miss Marion Harding of 361 Linwood Court, Little Rock.

In the younger group—age 9 to 13—the contest consisted of a personal letter to the Bishop, telling how their money was raised for the Church School Lenten offering. While the awards were the same to each, the winners were rated in the following order: Horace Sichel of St. Peter's Mission, Tolliver, Lem Parks of St. Paul's Parish, Batesville; Carston Hitch III, of St. Luke's Parish, OH.

E. Haselman Dies at Ozan

Ozan's Oldest Citizen Succumbs
at His Home

By WINNIE SPARKS
Ernest "Rheinhold" Theodore Haselman, 86, Ozan's oldest and one of the most highly respected citizens, died at his home in Ozan at 8:30 p. m., Saturday, May 31, after an illness of several months.

Mr. Haselman was born in Stolpe, Germany, Oct. 8, 1854. During his boyhood and youth he underwent the hardships of a poor boy's life in Germany in those days, serving in the German government as an army boy, but receiving the compulsory education of his native land, at that time, when, as now, the military rules were rigid and the regulations were severely and cruelly enforced. All of his life he felt the effects of a serious injury of the tympanic membrane and the bursted cochlea of one ear caused by his being compelled to stand too close to a cannon while he was firing it.

Young Ernest had strength, dauntless ambition, courage, and an aim to serve humanity without being oppressed by the strict regulations of his native land. So at the age of 27, he sailed for America with the ambition to be a farmer, though he had no knowledge whatsoever of the English language. He began work in his new country as a stableman in the Levi-Yergersfield livery stables in Washington with a salary of $15 a month.

When the Missouri Pacific railroad was opened through the Ozan territory in 1884 Mr. Haselman took the money he had frugally saved and with his wife, the former Nanette Baber, a local girl of German descent, moved to Ozan where he built and opened a hotel, which he operated for 55 years. At the time of his death, he was the only citizen who was living in the town when it was incorporated in 1885 and his hotel is the only original building that still stands.

Through his pleasing, attractive, friendly personality and his hotel, Mr. Haselman has probably become more widely known than any other Ozan citizen, for strangers throughout the North, South, East, and West often inquire about him and highly compliment him as they pleasantly remember his kind, courteous hospitality and friendship and the delicious foods served from his hotel tables.

Tourists from far-away places often visited him for old time's sake and to renew an old friendship.

Since his arrival in Ozan in 1884, Mr. Haselman has been an influential factor in all civic and educational projects that the community has undertaken. He was one of the first members of the Ozan Methodist church, having joined it August 3, 1889. For the majority of the time since 1890 until shortly before his death, he served as mayor and as a member of the Ozan School Board of Directors. In 1890, he endeavored to found a college at Ozan. Though the college never materialized, he is largely responsible for the efficiency rating the Ozan Public School has had for a number of years. Good churches, good schools, a moral, clean, Christian community and a desire to serve all whom he could were his aims in life. He was a generous benefactor to the church, to the school, to all worthwhile causes, but particularly to the poor children of and

Meet at Brenner Pass to Make Plans to Counter U. S. Moves in Atlantic

Three Other Courses are Hinted as British Announce Mediterranean
Has Become a Sea of the Axis

By the Associated Press

Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini conferred for five hours Monday with their army chiefs at Brenner, scene of past momentous decisions, and informed Fascist sources said the Axis leaders took of plans for countering beligerent moves by the United States.

The sources said Hitler and Mussolini were concerned with the prospect of action by the United States in connection with President Roosevelt's program to defend the Western Hemisphere with the United States navy—enveloping French West Africa, the Azores and other Atlantic islands.

By the Associated Press

Adolf Hitler and Premier Benito Mussolini reached a new and complete agreement on the course of the war in a meeting at Brenner pass-Monday.

At the same time the British announced that the Mediterranean had become an Axis sea.

The Axis situation and how to capitalize on it figured in the talks.

Qualified informants in London said the weeks developments—notably the fall of Crete and the alignment of France with the Axis—had practically eliminated the Mediterranean as a link from Africa and Suez to the British Isles.

Even the fastest of ships were likely to find transits of 1,900 mile sea, a feat of peril with two dangerous bottlenecks in the middle, reports said.

The 200 mile stretch between Crete and Axis-held Libya and the 100 mile gap between Sicily and French-ruled Tunisia were described as vulnerable to attacks from Axis bombers.

Thus the inland waterway, once termed "mare nostrum"—our sea—by the Italians now is shared with the Germans instead of the British.

Hitler and Mussolini conferred for several hours at the Brenner pass, for the sixth time since the beginning of the war. Each meeting heretofore has signalled a major phase of the war.

The German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop and Italy's Count Ciano attended the Brenner meet in which it was said "Hitler and Mussolini reached a complete agreement" on points of view.

A Berlin announcement said broadly that Hitler and Mussolini conferred "about the political situation" but speculation arose that they may have discussed:

1. A possible ultimatum to Turkey for the passage of Axis troops.
 2. A final peace offer to Britain now that Crete has fallen.
 3. Plans for a drive into Egypt and to the Suez canal.
- German Luftwaffe, after the 12-day battle of Crete, turned its fury anew on the last British and Greek survivors who are attempting to escape to North Africa.
- Britain has officially conceded defeat at Crete.

The London Daily Telegraph demanded an explanation for Britain's fourth straight setback at the hands of Germany—Norway, Flanders, Greece and Crete.

Anticipating this question British war officials said that ships and troops could not be expected to operate indefinitely in and near Crete without more support from the air.

With the fall of Crete British sources predicted that Hitler would attempt to invade the British stronghold of Cyprus, in the Eastern Mediterranean, 60 miles off Syria.

British Losses at Crete
ROME—(AP)—Virginia Gayda, authoritative fascist editor, estimated Monday that Britain had lost 45,000 men, killed or captured in the battle of Crete.

He asserted that British claims of having withdrawn 15,000 men from Crete by sea were false because, he said, they lacked ships and freedom of action to transport so many.

His figure was based on an estimate of 75 per cent losses on original strength of 60,000 soldiers.

(Unofficial British estimates had placed Greek and British total strength on Crete at 30,000 men.)

In years to come, it may be possible to control weather, and nations may go to war over rights to control vital areas, some scientists say.

E. Haselman

Many years ago he mastered the English language and kept in tune with the times by reading from six to eight of the leading magazines of the day. He was well-informed along all the topics of importance to Americans and cultured in the manners and customs of his community and nation. Though he was a native of Germany, he often remarked, "The day I took the oath of allegiance to become a naturalized citizen of the United States was the happiest and grandest day of my life. Gladly would I give every drop of blood in my body for the glorious United States flag and the ideals and truths for which it stands."

The military training of his youth expressed itself in various ways throughout his life. His business tasks were performed on schedule without variance. Until a year ago he walked with the square shoulders back and with quick, light steps characteristic of soldiers. The simple things of life were of the greatest interest to him.

On November 12, 1939, the Magazine Section of the Arkansas Gazette published an account of Mr. Haselman's interesting life. The article stated that as he had never cared for American breads he always baked his own from the recipe his mother gave him. After the publication of the article, he received dozens of letters, many offering him money for the recipe. He freely and graciously responded to as many of the requests that he could.

After the death of his first wife, he married Mrs. Ethel Nelson, who passed away, June 1, 1938. On May 12, 1940, he married Mrs. L. C. Cannon, who is the only one who survives him other than several nieces.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Miller motored to Armitry Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Elmore and daughter, Montez, spent Sunday in Little Rock with Mrs. Elmore's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Fort.

James Harbin of Little Rock was a week-end visitor in the city.

Mrs. L. E. Pettigrew and Mrs. Charles Harrison of Chickasha, Okla., will accompany Mary Elizabeth Bright to the city Monday, where she will visit her mother, Mrs. Mary Bright.

Friends of Mrs. E. E. McLaughlin will regret to know that she is confined to the Texarkana Hospital, where she underwent an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Z. Holly announce the arrival of a son, William Creighton, on Monday, June 2 at the Julia Chester hospital.

Mrs. J. L. Boyd of Corpus Christi, Texas, her daughter, Mrs. Helen Jenkins and son, John Barlow II, Dolly and Jimmy Boyd, grandchildren of Mrs. Boyd, are visiting her sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Pritchard and Mrs. Frank Howson, and her brother, John D. Barlow.

Hayden Newbold of Shreveport was the weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Lennley.

Miss Nell Louise Broyles arrived home this week-end to spend the summer vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Broyles. She has completed her freshman year at Henderson State Teachers college.

Billy Brown of Little Rock is visiting in the city, the guest of Bob Elmore Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Story Jr. and children, Carolyn and Bobby, have returned from a visit with relatives and friends in Shreveport.

FOOTSTEPS IN THE FOG

sensitivity of her own mood, intensified by the background of the foggy California dusk, had lent the circumstances a significance entirely out of proportion with reality.

It was as if, with the stage of the Metropolitan Opera half darkened, the orchestra had sounded a ringing motif, and out of the shadows a figure had suddenly shone forth—an heroic, radiant, youthfully arrogant figure in gleaming armor. You thought, "But how invulnerable he seems—how splendidly sure of himself!"

Yet underneath you felt, because of that hauntingly forbidding music, perhaps, that already he was inextricably entangled by tragic forces from which, in the end, there could be no escape.

Not that Deborah put this mentally into words that spring evening when the strange young man strode buoyantly out of the fog that billowed in from the Golden Gate, his bright bare head and belted white raincoat gleaming with moisture under the entrance lights of the store before which she stood, waiting for her bus.

At the moment when she first saw him, she was consciously concerned only with the business of bracing herself for the threatened collision. Yet the collision, when it actually came, was after all nothing to write home about. A split second from knocking her from her feet, he pulled himself up with the smooth co-ordination of a ski-jumper.

"But I am so sorry!" he cried, steadying her. "That was inexcusably clumsy of me."

He pronounced it "inEXcusable." Yet aside from an engaging trace of the Continental in his accent, his speech was very like that of a well-bred Englishman.

"There's no damage done. . . . And I suppose one has to expect things like this in a San Francisco fog."

"So?" She could not read his expression, but she guessed from a subtle shading of tone that his eyes were dancing. "Someone should have told me about your San Francisco fogs. Fogs have not always been so kind to me."

As Deborah hesitated between amusement and a guilty feeling that she ought not to stand here, talking to a total stranger, he went on, "You see, the last lady I bowed over in a fog was at least 50—and excessively plump. When I hit her, she squeaked—very much like an exploding balloon. "Achtung, Dummkopf! Vorsicht!" "Which only goes to show," Deborah told him, ailing her German—which she now guessed to be his native tongue—"that the placid poise of the plump is grossly overadvertised."

Now why did I do that? she wondered, ashamed of her childish impulse to show off.

"I say! But you also speak German?" "This IS my lucky day!" "Knowing languages is my job," Deborah explained crisply. "I make my living translating foreign masterpieces for the American public."

"So? To think that I came so near to topling over a celebrity!"

HE spoke with exaggerated respect. Deborah, who knew that she looked absurdly undeserving of such a pretentious title, guessed again that his eyes were laughing at her. As she moved to turn away, he cried with a boyish eagerness which she found dangerously disarming:

"Oh, but don't go yet—please! I honestly didn't mean to—'wisepop,' you Americans would call it, would you not?"

"For your future guidance," Deborah told him over her shoulder, "the current idiom is 'wise-crack.'"

"Oh, I—thank you," he sounded the ridiculously crestfallen. "In the United States, I am afraid, is not so polished as your German. Please wait! I am sure you would forgive me if you knew how down on my luck I was feeling just before I nearly knocked you out a moment ago," he hurried on. "Could we not—well, go somewhere and continue my education in the American idiom over something to eat?"

Just then Deborah's bus loomed up like a goggle-eyed monster out of the mist, and with a hastily flung, "Sorry!" she ran toward it.

"Well, that now," she smiled to herself as she looked about for a seat, "went quite far enough."

Sir Hugh Walpole, Novelist, Dies

LONDON.—(AP)—Sir Hugh Walpole, the British novelist who wrote almost a book a year from the age of 25, died of a heart attack early Sunday. He was 57. He had been ill for a week at his Lakeland home, Bracken, near Keswick in the Cumberland mountains.

He was known in the states not only by his "Jeremy" books and his "Heretics" saga but for frequent lectures, visits and a stay on the West Coast.

and nephews by his first wife and a host of friends.

His life had its share of tragedy and sorrow, for alone in a new land he fought for the success he won. He never returned to his native land.

Present day conditions in Germany grieved him deeply. During the World War he was very loyal to the United States, although he had German sympathies, for one of his sisters had six sons killed in the war. At the time of his death he knew of none of his relatives who may be living in Germany today.

Ozan has lost a great friend, and losing Mr. Haselman is like losing the cornerstone upon which the town has been built.

Funeral services will be held at the St. Paul Methodist Church, at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday, with the Rev. George Cagle, pastor of the Ozan Methodist Church, and probably, the Rev. Francis Buddin, pastor of the Munger First Methodist Church, Dallas Texas, officiating. Sir Hugh's remains will also make an address. Services will be in charge of the Masonic Lodge, which Mr. Haselman has been a member of for many years.

The Rev. F. E. Walters of Helena, Camp Director, reports that registrations already received indicate a larger enrollment for the 1941 Camp than in previous years.

The Camp staff includes the Bishop, the Rev. F. E. Walters, Camp Director; the Rev. Harry Wintermyer of Hope, chairman of the Department of Christian Education; and the Rev. C. C. Burke, of Marianna, Chaplain.

Study courses which will be offered this year include the Bible, the Life of Christ, Confirmation instruction, Church architecture, Church history, and a course on Christian Marriage.

The Camp is held primarily for young people of the Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Arkansas between the ages of 9 and 25, but adults may also attend.

Among those on the faculty will be the Rev. Francis D. Daley, of Pine Bluff, Dean of the faculty; the Rev. M. Wintermyer, the Rev. Cotesworth P. Lewis of Batesville; the Rev. T. P. Devlin of El Dorado; the Rev. F. E. Eastburn of Little Rock and the Rev. Mr. Walters. The Bishop will give the course on Confirmation instruction.

Mrs. R. Bland Mitchell, Little Rock, and Mrs. F. E. Walters of Helena will be hostesses. In charge of athletics will be Mr. Clarke T. Bloomfield of Forest City, Miss Rebecca Rockhart of Helena and Miss Irene Moll of Elaine. Mrs. Charles Wisel, Little Rock, will serve as Camp secretary-treasurer.

Recreational activities will include swimming, hikes, dancing, and other forms of outdoor exercise.

THERE had been about him, for all his impertinence, a quality engagingly young and eager, as if—almost as if he were talking against time, prolonging a moment of gay forgetfulness from less pleasant matters. . . . But that, of course, was nonsense. Forgetfulness of what, for instance? Definitely, Deborah told herself with that brisk return to practicality with which her matter-of-fact New England heritage invariably brought her down to earth, the fog, with its eternal illusion of mystery, its distortion of all normal values, must have got under her skin. . . . Yet all the way home, his image haunted her, as one is often haunted by some vivid figure from a play one has seen.

When Deborah went up to her room, Angela Silva was there. Angela was the home-town high school teacher who had obtained a leave of absence and driven across country from Cape Cod with her to attend this special course at the big Pacific Coast university.

Dr. Bennett to Tour Arkansas

Soil Conservation Head to Visit Hope Camp

DAMASCUS, Van Buren County — United States District Judge John E. Miller of Fort Smith, former United States Senator from Arkansas, has accepted an invitation to speak at the state-wide conservation rally at the Soil Conservation Service CCC Camp here Tuesday, June 10, Chairman J. L. Williams of the Central Valley Soil Conservation District announced Thursday.

The rally, at which Dr. H. H. Bennett, chief of the Soil Conservation Service, of Washington, D. C., will speak, will start at 10 a. m. and will be held in a shaded natural amphitheater adjacent to the CCC Camp. Damascus is about 20 miles north of Conway on Highway 65.

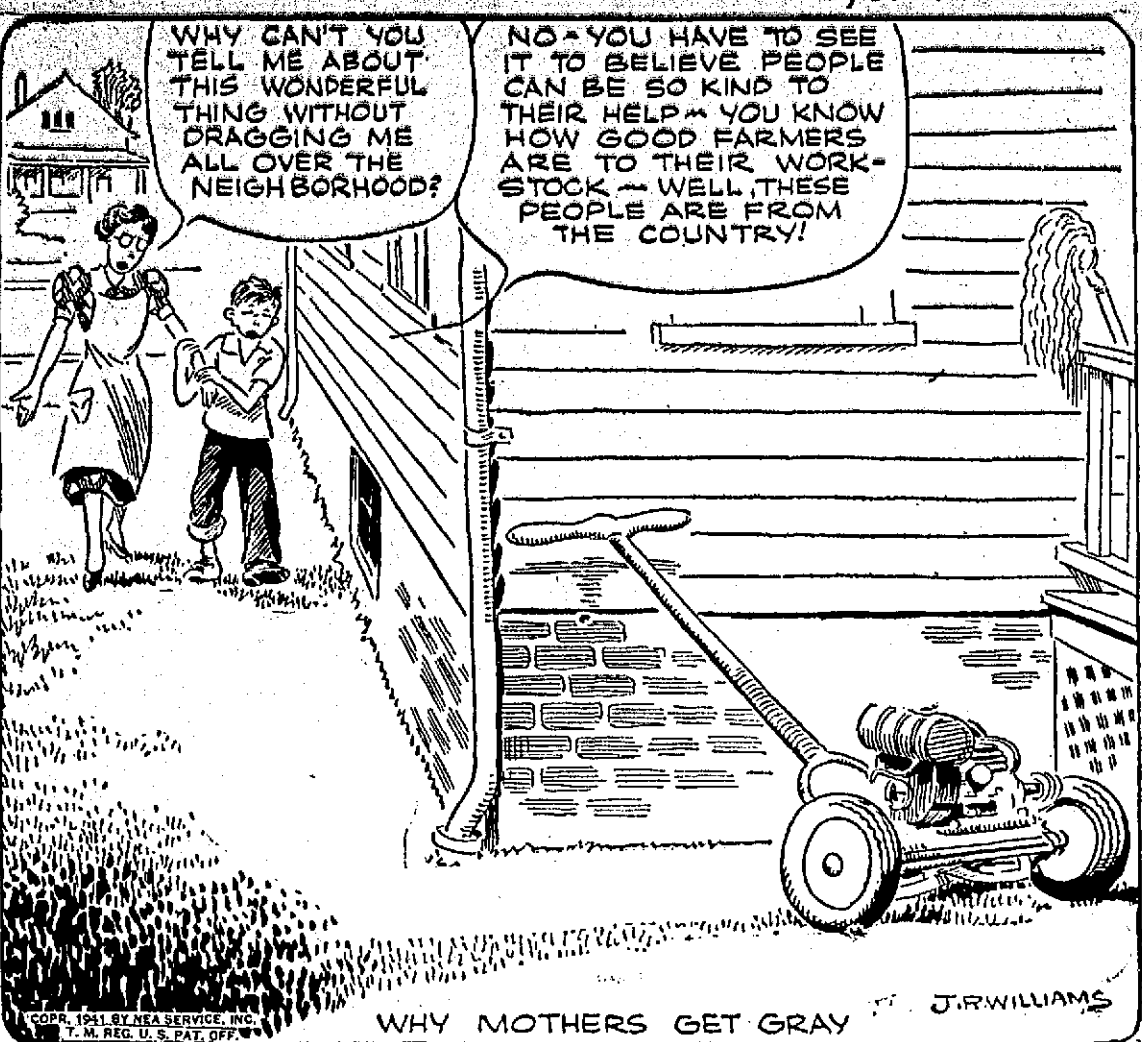

Judge Miller is recognized as one of the leaders in the conservation of our natural resources. Judge Williams of Morrilton, said in announcing the federal district judge's acceptance of the invitation to speak. Sponsored by the board of supervisors of the Central Valley District (which covers 1,275,000 acres in Faulkner, Cleburne, Van Buren, Conway and Pope Counties), the state-wide meeting is in observance of the seventh anniversary of the establishment of the first conservation demonstration project in Arkansas by the Soil Conservation Service, the sixth anniversary of the location of CCC Camps at Damascus and Sogahatchia for conservation work, and the third anniversary of the beginning of operations in Arkansas soil conservation districts. The first demonstration project was located near Conway, on the watershed of East Cadron Creek in Faulkner, White and Cleburne counties.

Representatives of state and federal agencies serving farmers in soil conservation districts and leaders of farmers' organizations are being invited to speak at the morning program. Judge Williams said he had sent letters of invitation to Fred A. Smith, Vocational Education; Aubrey D. Gates, Bureau of Agricultural Economics; H. E. Thompson, Arkansas Extension Service; Glenn E. Riddell, Soil Conservation Service; Hudson Wren, Farm Security Administration; J. B. Fanning, Agricultural Adjustment Administration; Floyd Sharp, Works Projects Administration; A. L. Nelson, Ouachita National Forest; P. H. Bryan, Ozark National Forest; Fred H. Lang, State Forester; J. H. Hull, National Youth Administration; Col. G. C. Graham, Civilian Conservation Corps; Dr. W. R. Horlacher, Dean of the College of Agriculture; Lawrence Sloan, master of the Arkansas State Grange, Strawberry, and R. E. Short, president of the Arkansas Farm Bureau, Brinkley.

Band music and other special entertainment features are being arranged for the rally which Judge Williams said will bring both farmers and business and professional men, with their families, from all sections of Arkansas. Seats are being built for 3,000 persons. Lunch will be served at the CCC Camp at a nominal cost by representatives of such local organizations as Four-H Clubs, Future Farmers of America and Home Demonstration Clubs. Adequate water and sanitary facilities will be available at the camp.

Art of War Is Glider Invasion

Napoleon Planned Air Attack a Century Ago

AP Feature Service
A century and a half ago Napoleon drew up an elaborate plan for attacking the British from the air—by balloon. But even he would be amazed by the latest technique of invasion from the sky by glider, transport plane and parachute.

Germany made the fabled isle of Crete the test tube for the first large-scale tryout of this war innovation. Here you see an artist's conception of the result—the most spectacular aerial invasion in history. Although there were reports that Nazi parachutists wore uniforms other than their own, particularly New Zealand, the Germans denied it.

Rejuvenated Cattle no Longer Tick

HELENA, Mont. (AP)—In the midst of abundant fresh spring grass eastern Montana cattle lost their appetites and grew listless, disdaining food. Veterinarians found them heavily infested with wood ticks. Apparently they had lost so much blood they couldn't walk or graze.

"From one steer we filled a four pound lard bucket with ticks," said Dr. W. J. Butler, state veterinarian.

Boys Stumble on Archeological Find

BEAR MOUNTAIN, N. Y. (AP)—Twelve-year-old Bob Scott and a pal discovered a cave. Inside were pieces of Indian pottery and ceremonial objects including a peace pipe.

James D. Burroughs, archeologist at Bear Mountain museum, reported the relics dated from the Algonquin period, preceding the Iroquoian period, and were the most important Indian discovery in years.

Long Childhood

Sixteen years of the life of a cicada are spent underground in an immature stage. On the 17th year, it emerges, sheds its outer covering, and becomes an adult "17-year locust."

At one time, baseball teams had a right shortstop who played between first and second bases.

CCC Has Part in Defense

Organization Has Been Aiding Youths 8 Years

Although Uncle Sam started his National Defense Program on a large scale basis a comparatively short time ago, his conservation army, the CCC, has been receiving training for a period of about eight years, which could be very easily classified as national defense training. It is a known fact that for each man on the battle front, it is necessary to have at least six left behind to fill the many essential jobs.

According to a press release by Mr. James J. McEntee, the Director of the CCC, this organization has been actively engaged during its eight years of existence in training enrollees to fill these jobs. This training has been and will be given in the future to the members of the CCC, as they perform their many different types of jobs in carrying on our great national conservation program.

Training in the camps vary to a great extent on the job, since there are several different types of conservation projects in existence, which require different types of work. Among the different types of projects, there might be mentioned, soil conservation work, both state and national forestry work, both state and national park work, reclamation works of various types and others.

Many Types of Training
Some of the many jobs in which the enrollee receives training and which falls into the classification of national defense training are: mapping and drafting work, bridge and road construction, automobile and heavy machinery operation, maintenance and repair, building construction, telephone line construction, welding, blacksmithing, cooking and baking and many others too numerous to mention.

Special Courses
Under the direction of the State Department of Vocational Education, many courses have been set up for CCC enrollees in National Defense Training Courses in four distinct types of work. These courses are Automotive Mechanics, Elementary Electricity, Woodwork, and Sheet Metal Work.

are being taught in the camp and in nearby schools with highly competent instructors being employed to teach these courses. The number of courses being taught in the camps in the Arkansas District ranges from one to five, with the Automotive Mechanics and Elementary Electricity classes being held now at Camp Alton.

District School
Realizing it would be practically impossible to set up a course in each camp, since there would not be enough men interested to warrant the outlay of expense, District Headquarters officials in Arkansas has set up a radio school under the National Defense Training Program with the three months course of instruction being given in Little Rock under two very efficient instructors. Outstanding enrollees from the camps of the District were chosen to attend this school. Enrollees Glendon Mitchell and Robert are representatives of Company 4754 at this school now.

For a period of over two years, there has been in operation in this District, a school for cooks and bakers. It has proved such a success, that it is constantly in operation with an enrollee from each camp in the state in attendance.

Although it is not realized by a large majority of the people, the CCC has been training men for jobs of essential importance to National Defense for a long period of time and will continue to do so in the future, as this is a part of their work in carrying out their every day duties.
